YPI Charter Schools (YPICS) is a small charter organization in Los Angeles. YPICS currently consists of two charter middle schools, one in the San Fernando Valley and one downtown, as well as a high school that we opened for the first time in the fall of 2015. Our student population consists of 99% Latino students; additionally, 87-98% (depending on the site) of our students qualify for the free and reduced lunch program. Despite some of the challenges we may face, our students still perform at a high academic levels and we have a strong school culture. Our goal is that all stakeholders feel supported to learn and grow at our schools, and we strive to provide the resources, training and personnel to help support everyone who is connected to our schools. Our schools have 4 hallmarks: Service Learning, Project-based Learning, Parent Engagement, and Enhanced Learning through technology. Currently, we are very focused on a strong implementation of the California Common Core standards and making sure that our kids are college and career ready. To do this, we have adopted a standards-based and mastery grading model and are working on implementing blended learning models in all classrooms. If you are a passionate educator and believer in social justice through education, YPICS may be the place for you! Please contact Kevin Myers (818-585-2305) if you would like to apply or to further discussion our schools.

Current Hiring Needs: We are expanding our high school this year, so we will need a chemistry teacher, and English teacher, Econ/Government teacher, math teacher, and a reading teacher. At our middle schools, we are looking for 2-3 multiple subject credentialed teachers to teacher either ELA/History or Math/Science.

Application Instructions: Contact Kevin Myers at 818-585-230-5 or via email at kmyers@ypics.org

Application Deadline: Until filled
